

NEAT Grilles

Since aesthetics is such an important part of the custom installation offering, we are always looking for ways to make the speakers we sell more attractive. Making them a neutral white, making them flush and paintable are all part of this effort. However, the fact that the mechanics of installation require certain design elements, directly affects the look of the finished speaker.

The flange or bezel serves two purposes. The first is to sandwich the wall material between it and the bracket or doglegs that tighten against the wall from the inside. The other is to cover the rough edge created when the hole is cut to accept the speaker. For some this flange is less than attractive so various attempts have been made to hide it. Unfortunately this has resulted in the installation becoming much more labor intensive and costly to the customer.

SpeakerCraft now offers a simple solution. The new NEAT grilles are a two-part system. The first is a round grille bracket that installs behind the flange when the speaker is being installed. The second is the grille itself that magnetically attaches to the grille bracket covering the entire speaker flange.

The result is a finished install that is grille only and less obtrusive in the room. There are three sizes covering all 5, 6, 7 and 8-inch SpeakerCraft ceiling speakers. Just another aesthetic option from the leader in custom installed loudspeakers and electronics.
